Visit Baan Bangrong Community, Past Provincial Community of Thalang-Bangrong, now Tourism Community, has a history of being a port city where most of its population are fishermen and farmers of rubber farms, pineapple farms, and livestock. Visit Phuket's pineapples farm and taste. This kind of pineapple weighs around 1-2 kilograms with sweet juicy and plump yellow endocarp. Its skin is orangey yellow. This pineapple is considered as Phuket's pineapple's identity and is registered GI on 27 November 2009. Then, visit a crab bank. Take a long-tailed boat along a mangrove forest to release berried crabs and inspect a tombolo.

After that, visit Baan Ar-Jor, the gorgeous Sino-Portuguese museum homestay in 1936 (before WWII). With 4 bedrooms as a hotel, museum and restaurant it is a really special, one of a kind dinner out. The "museum" is walking through the family home which has been decorated by a local artist with painted murals on the walls and displays of how they once might have lived with generations of family photos. Then, get a chance to try out original secret recipe which is 100 years old.
